DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

1. Claims 1-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The specification on page 2 mentions odd-lot exposure limit of a market participant, which could be a retail customer, and then states in the next paragraph “a market maker (presumably a dealer) can and will maintain different exposure limits ...”. It is unclear as to which one this invention is referring to. In addition the specification does not define what an “odd-lot exposure limit” is.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claim*s 1-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The specification on page 2 mentions odd-lot exposure limit of a market participant, which could be a retail customer, and then states in the next paragraph “a market maker (presumably a dealer) can and will maintain different exposure limits ...”. The claims in turn use those terms interchangeably, so it is unclear as to which one this invention is referring to. In addition neither the specification nor the claims define what an “odd-lot exposure limit” is.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

3. Claims 1-18 are rejected under USC 101 as the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter because it does not claim the use of technology in the body of the claims. For a claim to be statutory under 35 USC 101 the following two conditions must be met:

1) In the claim, the practical application of an algorithm or idea results in a useful, concrete, tangible result,

AND

2) The claim provides a limitation in the technological arts that enables a useful, concrete, tangible result.

As to the technology requirement, note MPEP Section IV 2(b). Also note In re Waldbaum, 173USPQ 430 (CCPA 1972) which teaches “useful arts” is synonymous with “technological arts”. In Musgrave, 167USPQ 280 (CCPA 1970), In re Johnston, 183USPQ 172 (CCPA 1974), and In re Toma, 197USPQ 852 (CCPA 1978), all teach a technological requirement.

The invention in the body of the claim must recite technology. If the invention in the body of the claim is not tied to technological art, environment, or machine, the claim is not statutory. Ex parte Bowman 61USPQ2d 1665, 1671 (BD. Pat. App. & Inter. 2001) (Unpublished).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 3628

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tewels et al, The Stock Market, 1998 (hereinafter Tew).

Tew discloses (see pages 168-169) all of the methods, systems, and products described within claims 1-26, including a method for trading odd-lots of a security in an electronic market for trading securities, determining whether an odd-lot exposure limit has been exceeded for a market participant, routing a received odd-lot order for execution or delivery to a market participant whose odd-lot exposure limit has not been exceeded and which is sufficient to satisfy execution of the order, an order execution/routing manager that executes non-directed orders against quoting market participant's quotes/orders based on a priority, a process to determine whether an order is a mixed order or an odd-lot order, an odd-lot execution process that executes the odd-lot portion of the mixed order or the odd-lot order, a process to determine whether an odd-lot exposure limit has been exceeded for a market participant, and a process to route a received odd-lot order for execution or delivery to a market participant whose odd-lot exposure limit has not been exceeded and which is sufficient to satisfy execution of the order. Tew does not teach the unexplained "odd-lot exposure limit".

However, the specification on page 1 states that the pre-existing SOES system automatically processes odd-lot orders in a round-robin fashion. To the extent that an "odd-lot exposure limit" exists, the SOES is handling its administration manually, as well as the automated processing of odd-lot orders.

It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time of the invention to have automated whatever SOES does on a manual basis, since it has been held that broadly providing a mechanical or automatic means to replace manual activity which has accomplished the same results involves only routine skill in the art. In re Venner, 120 USPQ 192.
